

A Man's World?

Which came first: the chicken or the egg?

Some very obvious facts & correlations need to be ignored to believe into the Patriarchal System & the lies that serve as its fundament. Some decades ago, women were still not allowed to vote or drive a car in many countries. Even in modern Germany, women needed their husband's consent to take a job & or other things until the 70s of the last Century. Where does the idea come from that women are inferior?

They are not, of course – to the contrary. The original human is clearly the woman. She is able to bear (multiple) children, which allows mankind to survive beyond a single lifespan. That most higher Earth species also have males as a specialised variety originally was an optional add-on & investment. Males have less abilities than females (no childbearing, inferior holistic & intuitive thinking as well as social skills, etc.), but are better at some to balance this. Homo Sapiens males are e.g. better at rational thinking, muscle work & single-problem solving. Their life purpose is to get the most attractive female possible and then protect & serve this female. Which will be in charge from then on.

The Weaker Gender

Males want sex, females grant sex

Human males – you can follow any of their thoughts to where they start – are primarily focused on achieving sex with attractive females. This prime target might be hidden between many layers of argumentation, justification & self-deception. But in the end, most activities are meant to directly or indirectly contribute to reaching a better position for more or better sex.

Outside a relationship, this is the main driver for any ambition most men can muster beyond having a good time & maintaining the status quo. Inside a relationship, females usually use sex (or its promise/withdrawal) to control their males' behaviour. Women are naturals when it comes to manipulating males who want to have sex with them. As this is how nature foresaw it: the more expendable males serve the smarter females.

There was a time when women exploited their advantage too much. Afterwards, religious texts were re-written, men obligated to be circumcised & women had to hide their hair, etc. Misogyny started while men tried to hide how weak & powerless they are.

